

David Brancaccio

David Brancaccio specializes in telling stories important to our democracy and our economy through the eyes of the real people at WHO LIVE IN THE CROSS HAIRS OF crucial issues. His accessible yet authoritative approach to both investigative reporting and in-depth interviewing has earned his work the highest honors in broadcast journalism, including the Peabody, the Columbia-duPont, the Emmy, and the Walter Cronkite award.

As host and senior editor of public television's NOW on PBS broadcast, David brought his engaging, probing style to beats that included business and finance, the environment, national security, and human rights. He also served for ten years as the host of public radio's innovative and popular business program, Marketplace. He has contributed to CNN, MSNBC, CNBC, The Nightly Business Report, the BBC, Britain's The Guardian, the Baltimore Sun and the Wall Street Journal. He is author of the book Squandering Aimlessly, a nationwide odyssey to speak to Americans about money and values.